

“Don’t Be” is a poem about setting boundaries and recognizing your self-worth. It explores the pain of being abandoned or disrespected by someone who claims to care, while expressing the importance of not allowing someone back into your life after they have taken your love and trust for granted.