

“Rent” is a poem about taking control of your own life and no longer depending on others for love and happiness. Through the metaphor of renting, it explores learning to claim your own happiness, set boundaries, and stop allowing others to take advantage of your patience.